The MultiCultural Audience

The National MultiCultural Institute is a private, nonprofit organization founded in 1983 whose mission is to work with individuals, organizations, and communities in creating a society that is strengthened and empowered by its diversity. In addition to its National Conferences, NMCI provides Organizational Training and Consulting on diversity issues, publishes books and training manuals through NMCI Publications, and develops Leading Edge Projects in the field.

Managers and administrators, human resource personnel, trainers and consultants, educators, conflict resolutions practitioners, mental health and social service professionals, and others concerned with diversity who work in the private, government, and corporate sectors will again be here.

Issues of culture, ethnicity, race, age, gender, and sexual orientation have assumed greater significance in the United States as a result of population shifts and the growing national awareness of differences. New skills and knowledge are required in fields such as workforce diversity, human resource management, education, and conflict resolution. The Fall 2010 Conference theme is: "Navigating Differences in a Changing World: Dialogues on Diversity, Culture, and Identity".

The major goals of this conference are to: offer an opportunity for in-depth diversity training and skills building; focus on some of the unique issues that professionals face in working with a culturally diverse population; and create a multicultural environment in which an open, cross-cultural dialogue can occur.
